

Paul Wunderlich: Picture "Spiral Painter", unframed

€930.00

Product no.: IN-477964

The spiral is a symbol of the life span of a human being. Unlike the circle, it has a beginning and an end. One could interpret the spiral as the path of a person who expands their life through experience and knowledge in the course of their life. It seems that Wunderlich created the spiral painter as a hidden self-portrait in this sense. Because he deliberately placed the beginning of the spiral at the inner end, at the beginning of life, and symbolised with the drifting apart spiral arcs the progress of life maturing in experience and reflection. A reference to the development and unfolding of his own work.

Original colour lithograph in 8 colours on Zerkall handmade paper. Limited edition of 100 copies, numbered and signed by hand. Catalogue raisonné no. 875. Unframed. Sheet size 66.5 x 91.7 cm.
