Since the Babylonian astrologers tried to decipher the messages of the stars about 3900 years ago, people have been attempting to influence the cosmic forces. In ancient Egypt, people wore all kinds of amulets and lucky stones that were supposed to ward off all kinds of dangers and favour the powers of fate.

Inspired by the magnificent gold treasures of Ancient Egypt, goldsmiths of our time created luck-bringing pieces of jewellery for each of the twelve astrological zodiac signs. The bangle of Queen Amanishakheto features the depiction of the winged Isis, which forms the basis of this magnificent zodiac talisman (24.8. - 23.9.)

Brooch is made of solid gold-plated 925 sterling silver. Featuring a citrine as a lucky stone, which is supposed to give and preserve the beauty and protect against illness. Size 2.5 x 2.5 cm.
