Armin Mueller-Stahl's portraits are expressive images of people. Armin Mueller-Stahl painted this portrait in 2006 to commemorate one of the most important persons in German cultural history, whom he particularly admires: on the 150th anniversary of his birth, he painted the father of psychoanalysis Sigmund Freud (1856-1939). With sparing brushstrokes, reduced to the essential and abstract in his way of seeing, he gives the character pictorial existence.
