Product no.: IN-947917

Wassily Kandinsky drew inspiration for numerous works from the region of the Bavarian Alpine foothills. In 1908, he painted this brightly coloured street scene in Murnau. The painting documents a radical reorientation in his painting style. With its broad brushstrokes, contrasting and radiant colours, and a reduced depiction of the picture's subjects, this painting already exhibits the characteristic features of Expressionism. This work is among Kandinsky's most sought-after pieces. The original was auctioned in 2023 for around 4 million euros.
