

Loriot: Sculpture "Wum", bronze version

€1,880.00

Product no.: IN-388269

No pain, no gain! The cartoon character Wum, created by Loriot, tirelessly called out for his lord and master in every German quiz show. His elongated "Toooooelke" became the secret emblem of one of German television's most popular quiz shows entitled "Der große Preis" (eng.: The Grand Prize).

Loriot also won major TV prizes, such as the silver Adolf Grimme Prize. The song "Ich wünsch' mir 'ne kleine Miezekatze" (eng.: I wish for a little pussycat), composed for Wum, sold 1.3 million copies and fetched Loriot a gold record...

Loriot's Wum is available exclusively from ars mundi in two editions: in fine bronze or polymer stone with Loriot's original colouring. He perkily sits on his cushion as if it were a winner's podium: "The winner is..."

Edition in bronze. Cast using the Lost-Wax-Process. Polished, hand-painted and finely patinated. Limited edition of 499 copies. Cushion made of a polymer stone. Each sculpture is shipped in 2 parts. Size 15 x 29.5 x 16 cm (w/h/d).
