Vasarely was inspired by the newly built space telescopes and observatories of the 1970s to create this shiny foil painting dominated by gold: For the first time, it was possible to photograph distant galaxies and constellations of stars. This original glossy foil colour print on cardboard was edited and produced in Neuchâtel/Switzerland in the 1970s. Atmospherically framed in a softly shimmering golden solid wood frame with a brushed surface. Frame size 68 x 68 cm.
