Sculpture "Tutelary Goddess Serket" (reduction), gold-plated

€990.00

Product no.: IN-289594

Her name translates to "(she who) tightens the throat". As a tutelary goddess, she was supposed to bring about the eternal life of the pharaoh. "Serket", the scorpion that wards off evil, adorns her head as a sign of her magic. Original: Tutankhamun's burial treasure, c. 1335 BC, Egyptian Museum, Cairo.

Polymer ars mundi museum replica, cast by hand, and sculpture model gold-plated by hand. Reduction. Height incl. wooden pedestal 45 cm.
