In 1953, the brothers Juan, José and Vicente Lladró founded a porcelain manufacturing company near Valencia, Spain, and initially produced vases and small jugs. Three years later, they decided to produce figurines. Since 1956, these works of art made of the finest porcelain have been delighting a steadily growing fan community worldwide. Since 1974, all figurines from the Lladró manufacturing company bear a blue bellflower as the company logo.

The descendants of the three Lladró founding brothers have also devoted themselves to the art of porcelain. A closely guarded company secret is the recipe of the specially developed porcelain paste that gives the figurines their unique character. The formula for the glossy coating is also a secret. Many limited editions have become sought-after collectors' items.

Sculptor Joan Coderch provides his detailed parrot with a "Dazzle" camouflage, which was common war equipment at the beginning of the last century. Made of hand-painted porcelain. Limited edition 500 copies. Size 22 x 46 x 21 cm (w/h/d). Weight 2.6 kg.
