A curious glance at the world - Evert den Hartog's rhinoceros.

Evert den Hartog works out the shape and form of his motifs in his sculptural works in a way that never really strays far from the real model. At the same time, however, he gives them an additional level of interpretation. That can be a moment of tension that he perfectly "freezes" ("Frozen Moments" is, therefore, the title of a publication on his work). Moreover, he likes to lend his animal sculptures something playful, even providing them with a clear dash of humour. In the case of his little rhinoceros, for example, we can hardly help but recognise not only the rhinoceros within us but the invitation to follow in the animal's footsteps and to watch the course of the world with interest and composure.

Sculpture in fine bronze, cast using the Lost-Wax-Process, patinated grey/black and polished by hand. Limited world edition of 99 copies, individually numbered and bearing the Hartogs signature emblems. Certificate included. Size 14.5 x 12 x 19 cm (h/w/d). Weight 2 kg. ars mundi Exclusive Edition.
