The lithograph cycle "Daphnis and Chloé" is one of Chagall's most famous works and tells the story of two orphans of the same name who, after trials and tribulations, finally find each other. For the pictorial realisation of the bucolic ancient pastoral novel, Chagall travelled several times to the Greek island of Lesbos to be inspired by the atmosphere of the landscape. The 42 graphic works appeared as a portfolio and still radiate with unbroken luminosity today. The dominant red in this work stands for a kindled fire of love.
