Dieter Finke, born in 1939, is a veteran of the Berlin art scene. Finke's credo is a reduction to the essential. The artist's focus is not on the animal but the picture of its essence. In an intelligent abstract way, he reduces the shape of an animal to its original form, a timeless pictorial symbol. When modelling, he challenges himself by using unusual materials such as wood and cardboard. But the effort is worth it: the filigree archetype acquires a special expressive power in the precious metal.

Sculpture made of fine bronze, cast using the Lost-Wax-Process. Limited edition of 199 copies, numbered and signed. Height 33 cm, width 17 cm. With two solid wooden bases in the sizes 15.5 x 32.5 x 15.5 and 13 x 18 x 8 cm (w/h/d). Exclusively at ars mundi.
