

Roman Johann Strobl: Sculpture "Banker", cast wood finish

€380.00

Product no.: IN-730870

The sculptor Roman Johann Strobl works filigree and expressive sculptures out of massive trunks with a chain saw. His feeling for the material and his virtuoso handling of his tool even enable him to create astonishingly precise portraits - for example, at the Expo 2000, when he carved the portrait of former Germany's Chancellor Gerhard Schröder out of a tree trunk in front of a stunned audience.

Strobl's portrait of his profession shows him from his cheerful side: the banker riding the euro shows in a humorous way what the representative of this profession is made of.

Replica of a filigree wooden sculpture. Polymer cast in wood finish, partly hand-painted, size 12.5 x 29 x 11.5 cm (w/h/d).
