Product no.: IN-932025

The intimate kiss of a couple is a challenging subject and this is probably why the great sculptors have taken on this task time and again. Here, the sculptor SIME, who has been living and working in Munich for a long time, shows how confidently he masters the challenge: he depicts the couple's togetherness with anatomical precision without completely dispensing with the abstracting visual style of modernism. SIME at least hints at breaking down the rounded forms of the body into planes - note the slightly cubic shaping of their thighs and shoulders, as well as the sharply contoured rounding of his front torso and the flat execution of the cheek and eye area. The duality of the figures thus also leads to a unity of representation in terms of design.
