Thanks to the poet Don José de la Vega, the bull and the bear have been symbols of the stock market since 1688. The Coburg sculptor Jürgen Götze, who specialises in figurative sculpture, has taken up the theme of the bull and the bear. The result is two material variations that impress with their extremely clear lines. The figures are not connected to the black cast stone plate and can be arranged as desired. The base also has a storage recess for a pen or a cigar. ars mundi Exclusive Edition.
