Product no.: IN-746152

"Colour has taken possession of me; no longer do I have to chase after it. I know that it has a hold of me forever... Colour and I are one. I am a painter." Paul Klee said this, inspired by the light and colours of the south, which he travelled to several times, including during his Bauhaus teaching career.

Original: 1924, aquarelle on chalk ground on paper, Franz Marc Museum, Kochel am See, permanent loan from a private collection.

Edition transferred directly onto artist's canvas using the Fine Art Giclée process and stretched onto a stretcher frame. Limited edition of 499 copies, numbered, with certificate. Framed in a handmade, ivory-coloured solid wood frame. Size 63 x 77 cm (h/w). ars mundi Exclusive Edition.
