

Caspar David Friedrich: Picture "The Lonely Tree" (1822), framed

€490.00

Product no.: IN-784486.R1

The painting "The Lonely Tree" from 1822, representing Germany, has been damaged due to the occupation by the French. However, in the surroundings of the tree, a positive development is already hinted at: the rising daylight symbolises a bright and better future. For many viewers, Friedrich's painting represents the damaged nature. But leaning against the tree is a shepherd, symbolising hope for healing and harmony between humanity and creation.
Original: Alte Nationalgalerie, Berlin.
