Drawing strength from constant transformation: Maria-Luise Bodirsky's "Metamorphosis".

Since 1994, the artist has devoted herself to the theme of metamorphosis. She is fascinated by Ovid's epic "Metamorphoses", which are ancient mythological stories of transformation about becoming and dying. Moreover, she is fascinated by the evolution of humankind, changes, and the solidification and liberation from those changes. Those topics inspire her to create works about different states of being. Every phase of life involves letting go of the old and the possibility of a new beginning.
