

Paul Wunderlich: Sculpture "Mozart", bronze

Product no.: IN-707863

If you approach the sculpture head-on, you look into a face that looks at its observer with interest and concentration at the same time. The slender head sits on the crescent-shaped shoulder section, which is visually divided in the middle by a stylised jabot.

The sculpture captivates with its reduced and seemingly simple shape but reveals symbolism through the details: A triangle divides the back of the figure and is the sign of Freemasonry, whose idea of tolerance is Mozart's theme in his Magic Flute. The contrast between the baroque-style head and the reduced corpus is wonderful. The bronze surface is partly structured, partly smoothly polished, has a golden shimmer and underlines the noble and sublime character of the genius.

Bronze sculpture, patinated, partly polished. Cast using the Lost-Wax-Process. Limited edition of 60 copies, numbered and signed. Height 22 cm, width 29 cm. Weight 4 kg.
