

Paul Wunderlich: Sculpture "Crescent Moon Stele" (1994), bronze

€1,900.00

Product no.: IN-737596

The sculpture "Crescent Moon", related to ancient idols, oscillates between the archaic and the modern. Its magic and the imagination it awakens in us take us into the world of mysteries. When Wunderlich gives the slender, elegant female torso a crescent moon as an attribute, he is following - apart from formal considerations - the intentional allusion to Luna, the moon deity. As Joachim Kaiser says about Wunderlich, perhaps one has to be a little obsessed with the will to perfection to bring everything to the (aesthetic) point of truth in order to appreciate how much profundity resonates in the elegant form of this sculpture.

Bronze sculpture 1994, patinated, partially polished. Cast using the Lost-Wax-Process. The height of the sculpture is 40 cm. Mounted on a bronze plinth 13 x 7 x 1.5 cm. Weight 1.2 kg. Edition of 1,250 copies, numbered and signed. Factory number 238.
