

Temple Dancer

€280.00

Product no.: IN-005061

This graceful artist with the snake reached the present time from the period of the dancing god Krishna. Her graceful limbs, resplendent in jewellery, embody a culture of refined eroticism to which the pleasures of the senses were sacred. Even today, king cobras are kept in temples in India and Thailand and worshipped at cult dances. Ayutthaya style, Indochina, 16th century. Original privately owned. Cast metal, finely patinated by hand. Height 22 cm.
