

Sphinx Head of Amenophis II

€980.00

Product no.: IN-001605

The king's head, which is broken off from a sphinx, can be assigned to Amenophis II because of stylistic criteria. Surrounded by the striped Nemes headcloth with forehead uraeus, the youthful facial features of this king, who sat on the pharaonic throne for barely 40 years, are fascinating.

Original: Musée du Louvre, Paris. Egypt, New Kingdom, 18th Dynasty, c. 1390 BC, stone.

Polymer ars mundi museum replica cast by hand, height with marble base 32 cm.
