Product no.: IN-715662.R1

Gustav Klimt became famous for his portraits. Among the Viennese bourgeoisie, who were open to modern painting, he was regarded as the portrait painter par excellence. Thus, he was able to realise his equally unusual and original ideas of portraiture in several commissioned works. The most famous is the portrait of Adele Bloch-Bauer (the "Golden Adele"), a painting that was returned to the rightful heirs a few years ago and can now be admired in New York.

The painting "Lady with Hat and Feather Boa" - the portrait of an unknown woman, perhaps a prostitute, has a similar story. This central work from Klimt's oeuvre was also returned to the heirs of the original owner Hermine Lasus by the Österreichische Galerie Belvedere in Vienna by decision of the Restitution Advisory Board.

Original: Oil on canvas, privately owned.
